Germany-based ZUVA Foods, the brand for '100% natural, fair and sustainably grown food from Africa', has launched new ready-to-eat breakfast and lunch bowls produced in partnership with farmers in rural regions of Zambia, Uganda, and Zimbabwe.

They come in three varieties: the South African national dish Bobotie with fruity mango, spicy turmeric, and a hint of chilli; the exotic North African spice blend Chermoula with sweet potato and coriander; and the zesty African seasoning sauce Chakalaka with fruity tomato, cumin, and chilli.

"We know that a balanced diet is a vital part of managing our wellbeing, but when we're on-the-go, it's often easier to reach for unhealthy fixes," said CEO and Founder of ZUVA parent company Amatheon Food GmbH, Mr. Carl Heinrich Bruhn. "Our bowls are specially made with only natural ingredients and are balanced with plant-based proteins, fibre, vitamins and minerals."
